

Common Death Adder

Also known as: southern death adder

Found: in eastern Australia (except the far north and south), southern South Australia and Western Australia

The common death adder is an ambush predator that sits motionless, concealed in leaf litter, sand or gravel, twitching the worm-like lure on the end of its tail to attract prey.