

Learning Stories

A Learning Story is just that, a story that tells a tale to those who are reading it. It should focus on a child or a group of children, about the decisions they make and the consequences that follow. With detail descriptions like in a narrative, a Learning Story provides an informative approach of the experience and the events that occurred.

As I was setting up Kelly stood watching me. "I like painting, is it my turn to paint". Kelly walked over to the easel. I asked Kelly what she will be painting. Kelly turned and said "it's a surprise". She confidently drew a circle on the piece of paper using blue paint. Smiling, on top of the blue circle Kelly painted a red circle. She mixed both the blue and red together. She chuckled "I made purple". Under the circle, Kelly painted a straight yellow line and on top of it, used blue "green, that's what I want" she said quietly to herself. Next, Kelly used the yellow paint to make semi circled around the purple circle "I'm almost finished, want to see" she said excitedly.
