

Professional Development

We traditionally think about professional development as being workshop, conferences and more recently webinars. Professional development should be aligned with the learning style, needs and abilities of individual educators including mentoring, research projects, reading articles, qualifications, in-house training, coaching and more.

