

Reciprocal

Reciprocal relationships have two equal participants. In early childhood we need to allow others a voice and listen to their voice for this to be truly reciprocal. The way in which children, families and other educators/colleagues get to see their voices contributing to service decisions will encourage them to continue to participate further in these relationships builds trust.

