

Early Learning And Development

Early learning and development is the result of early childhood education and care, and occurs when qualified educators plan and deliver quality programs, and then observe the changes in children's social, emotional, cognitive and physical abilities.

